City council Monday night passed a resolution instructing Solicitor G. J. Clark to prepare legislation for the issuance of $127,716.05 in refunding bonds to liquidate defaulted bonds and others due in October and November.

Auditor Shelton J. Overdorf submitted a transcript from the state taxing commission, authorized by H. D. Deffenbacher, deputy supervisor of the Ohio bureau of inspection of public officers, and State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy approving the plan.

In his letter, Tracy said, "It has been found by examination of the records of the city of East Liverpool that funds are not available for the payment of said bonds which have matured and which are about to mature, and that no other method exists by which payment can be made."

At the same time, council passed an ordinance on a motion by Member Edgar H. Heddleston providing for the issuance of notes for $4,500 by Mayor Ralph C. Benedum and Auditor Overdorf, anticipating the sale of bonds for a similar sum for the purchase of sanitary sewer materials. The funds were asked by Service-Safety Director John W. Moore at the previous meeting of council.

The notes, which will first be offered to the sinking fund trustees, will bear interest at six per cent, payable semi-annually.

An ordinance was initiated by Councilman E. B. Laughlin and seconded by Dr. A. C. Frost, determining to proceed with the improvement of Sewer District No. 5 and Princeton avenue between Russett alley and Anderson boulevard by extending a sanitary sewer. A resolution was adopted declaring it necessary to construct a sanitary sewer in District No. 2 for a distance of 400 feet along St. Clair avenue.

A third ordinance was passed under suspension of the rules amending a previous enactment to permit extension of the sanitary sewer in District No. 4 by "unemployed citizens of East Liverpool, under the supervision of the service-safety director and the public welfare and charity department."

Carpenter's Run Job Held Up.

Council approved the 1934 budget totaling $229,802.12. The amounts set aside include: Sinking fund, $44,714.12; bond retirement fund, $4,200; general fund, $169,388; library fund, $7,500; firemen's pension, $3,000; policemen's pension, $1,100.

It was moved by Lawmaker George Hughes that the municipality purchase property adjacent to Clairborn avenue, west of Dresden avenue, from the Briggs & Turville company of Chicago, at a cost of $100, to provide an outlet for residents in the district, providing the city obtain an abstract of the land. With the purchase of two lots, at right of way over the third will be granted. It was claimed by city officials.

During reports of standing committees, Clark, who had been instructed to prepare legislation for acquiring rights of way over private property in the St. Clair avenue sanitary sewer district, declared that five property owners agreed to terms, while the sixth, Wilson F. Smith, was seeking additional remuneration. "Mr. Smith, who wants the city to pay for the right of way as well as the customary free connection, is the one holding up the Carpenter's Run sewer job at this time, and not the solicitor," Clark declared.

Damage Claims Filed

A letter asking $35 damages for a washed out wall caused, it said, by storm water from Hazel street, and signed by Richard Simpson of 1021 Edgewood avenue, was referred to the claims committee. A communication from Attorney G. Y. Travis calling council's attention to damage done property at 754 Chester avenue from a clogged or covered sewer, was received and filed. The damage was placed at $40.40. James Poole of 401 Ogden street complained that a storm sewer in Sarah street overflowed into his cellar. The matter was referred to the claims committee for investigation.

Statements of Wagner
And Frances Perkins
Quoted.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—To prevent what he termed the threatened "passing of the public free schools" as a result of budget balancing, the American Federation of Labor convention today adopted a 12-point educational program calling for "the utmost endeavor for the protection of education from kindergarten through university."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Administration agreement soon for a re-opening of existing NRA codes so wages may be increased and hours shortened is looked for by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Green based his belief on statements made before the federation convention by two persons high in administration councils—Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the labor advisory board, and Secretary Frances Perkins of the labor department.

Higher Wages, Short Week Seen

Last week, Secretary Perkins said "we cannot stop" with the present minimum wages and maximum hours; yesterday, Wagner said some of the minimum scales should be higher, that perhaps wages in higher brackets should be fixed too, and that a 40-hour week would not re-absorb the unemployed.

"Those statements," Green said, "certainly are susceptible of being interpreted to mean that the administration is ready to revise the codes."

"One of the speakers was a cabinet member. The other was appointed to his present post by the President, and as one of the authors of the recovery act, probably knows as much about its purpose and what the President wants to accomplish with it as anybody else."

Code Revision Urged

The Federation president, who often has contended that existing wage and hour provisions are not satisfactory, added this forecast: "The convention this week will insist upon a general revision of the codes to increase purchasing power further."

A 6-hour day, 5-day week likely will be asked, he added.

Convention delegates, in the second week of their meeting, said additional need for reopening the codes in figures presented to them by Wagner. He said that production, after jumping 65 per cent from April to August, lost a third of that gain in September.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 10.—The modish Kathryn Kelly was named in government testimony today as the purchaser of a machine gun used in kidnapping Charles F. Urschel, and her husband George (Machine Gun) Kelly was pointed out as the gangster who collected $200,000 ransom for the oil millionaire's release.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 10.—The 15-year-old daughter of Kathryn Kelly by a former marriage has been called by the government to testify in the trial of her mother and stepfather, George (Machine Gun) Kelly, for the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel.

The girl, Pauline Frye, was to be asked today concerning the movements of the Kellys while the abduction of the oil millionaire was conceived and executed.

Pauline sat in court yesterday, occasionally waving a nail-tinted hand at Kathryn.

E. E. Kirkpatrick, of Tulsa, was expected to be the first witness to appear today in the fast-moving court drama.

He was the family friend and Urschel business associate who met a man he identified as Kelly on a Kansas City street at dusk July 30, and handed over the $200,000 ransom that procured the oil man's release.

HAVANA, Oct. 10.—The hook of governmental overthrow which has snatched more than one of his predecessors off Cuba's stormy political stage was extended today for President Ramon Grau San Martin.

As it was held out on a wave of shifting public opinion, the veteran Nationalist leader Carlos Mendieta, listening from the wings, heard a rising clamor for his re-appearance.

The Grau regime, fighting desperately to stave off retirement, held out compromise after compromise in the hope of quieting the shouts of opposition.

MAIL ROBBERY
WITNESS SLAINChicago Gangland
Guns Kill Dapper
Gus Winkler.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The body of Gus Winkler, dapper heir to part of the affluence of the old Capone gang lay in a morgue today—mute evidence of the gangland rule that dead men tell no tales.

In gangland they call talking to authorities the "squeal" and it was the theory of investigators that his enemies pumped four volleys of shotgun pellets into his body yesterday to keep him from telling what he knew about the $250,000 mail robbery in Chicago last December.

Winkler was the second person linked with the robbery in one way or another, to die. The other was Edgar B. Lebensberger, owner of a swanky club in Chicago's near North Side. Lebensberger was found shot to death the other day shortly before it was revealed that he was under indictment in connection with the robbery.

Some investigators said he might have been murdered, despite a coroner's verdict of suicide.

Other Men Marked.

And while Winkler's body lay in a mortuary there were newspaper reports that his slayers have marked for death, one or possibly two other men to silence them.

The report that Winkler, who had been in hiding since last Saturday, had intended to talk today with federal investigators came from his blond widow.

Captain Dan Gilbert of the state's attorney's office expressed belief that Winkler "was the contact man between the actual mail robbers and the peddlers of the stolen bonds. It is significant that every one but Winkler was indicted and it seems obvious that Winkler was an informer. He was the only man alive, apparently, who could put the finger on the gangsters who robbed the mail messenger."

Killers Fire From Truck

That Winkler himself knew the end of his short-lived power was near, was evidenced but two weeks ago when he was a prisoner at the Chicago detective bureau. A cell mate asked him to will him his diamond-encrusted watch.

"Sure," said the smiling Winkler. "Sure, I better put it in right away, brother, because I don't think I'll be here long."

Three killers motoring down the street in a green truck made his prediction come true. Methodically, they poked their guns from the machine and let go their shots. But he didn't talk. The "squeal" gangland presumably expected from him, died with him. His last words, after he had prayed, were: "This is the end of a gangster."

Conditions in Interior Quiet.

The rapid developments pointing toward Grau's downfall grew out of mediatory conversations which began over the week-end and still were continuing today.

Conditions in the interior, meantime, remained for the most part quiet.

At Camaguey, however, the governor was forced by revolutionary factions to resign in favor of the students' candidate, Fernando Barreto.

Striving to carry out the government's order against the bearing of arms by unauthorized persons, federal soldiers searched automobiles on the highways throughout the night.

BANK ROBBERS
GET $68,000Three Men Seize
Currency Boxes
In Warren.

By The Associated Press.

WARREN, O., Oct. 10.—A daylight bank robbery in which $68,000 was whisked from the possession of two Second National bank messengers without a shot being fired left authorities with only slender clues today.

Armed posses raced up and down northeastern Ohio roads last night, but failed to locate the trail of the three escaping robbers, who carried off with them two boxes of currency, consigned from the federal reserve bank of Cleveland to the Second National bank where it was to be used for the payroll of local concerns.

Charles Wolfe and Frank Fisher, the messengers, were held up by three men directly in front of the bank late yesterday. Last night they examined photographs at police headquarters in Cleveland in an attempt to identify the trio.

Escape in Auto

Police said the three, after obtaining the money, hurried to their car, which apparently had been left without a driver could be away before pursuit could be organized.

An abandoned car parked near the bank was the subject of an investigation today as officers considered the possibility it might have been used by the robbers. They said it had been stolen from M. B. McKee, of Sidney, O.

The funds were insured by both banks.

Wolfe and Fisher had parked their car near the bank and were about to enter the building when they were confronted by the robbers, who told them, "You know what this is."

Robbers Dressed in Overalls

The messengers saw a revolver in the hand of one of the robbers. A paper sack partly concealed what appeared to be a machine gun carried by the other.

Wolfe and Fisher raised their hands, dropping the boxes, and one of the gunmen took Wolfe's gun. The man who appeared to be carrying a machine gun was dressed in overalls, and was red haired, the bank messengers said. Descriptions were lacking of the other men, although several townspeople were near the bank when the holdup occurred.

The currency was in denominations of from $1 to $20.

Non-Union Miners Go
To Work In Indiana

By The Associated Press.

SULLIVAN, Ind., Oct. 10.—Under protection of Indiana national guardsmen non-union miners today for the first time in many weeks went to work in the Starburn mine without being molested by pickets.

A jubilant group entered the shaft openly whereas in recent weeks they have been compelled to make their way through threatening ring of union sympathizers.

By a proclamation of Governor Paul V. McNutt, which became effective last night, all of Sullivan county was under military control. Two companies of national guardsmen were on duty to make the proclamation effective.

2,000 striking employees of the Weirton Steel company returned to work today.

The pickets, numbering hundreds, made only one attempt to interfere with the most concerted back-to-the-mills movements since 10,000 to 15,000 steel men walked out more than a week ago.

As a big crowd massed at one of the gates, apparently intent on blocking the entrance, state troops let go the tear gas and the gathering quickly dispersed.

Troopers at Main Gates

Steel company officials said that by 9 a. m. a virtually normal 8 a. m. shift was on hand and all departments of the mill were operating.

Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers said, however, that not more than 600 men returned.

From the company's Steubenville plant, across the Ohio river, came word that the mill was operating normally, workers having voted last night to resume activity. A projected "parade" of pickets failed to materialize.

Many of the Weirton workers entered the mill before the crowds began to gather, company officials said. Ten state troopers were on duty at each of the four main gates.

Coal Collieries Reopen

Many of the men in the picket lines wore their working clothes and carried dinner pails and as the morning wore on group after group broke away and entered the mills.

Meanwhile, in the soft coal fields of western Pennsylvania where a strike of miners preceded the steel walkout, a number of collieries reopened today. Employees of the H. C. Frick Coke company, however, still are out.

Quiet was reported at Clairton and Ambridge, where a number of steel workers went on strike in sympathy with the miners.

COAL FIELD PEACE IS SEEN

Negotiations between soft coal miners and operators were viewed by NRA officials today as forestalling a possible settlement of Pennsylvania strike difficulties.

Hugh S. Johnson, regarded the conference to be held between officials of the United Mine Workers of America and Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke company, as the natural consequence of Saturday's White House meeting with the steel interests which own the "captive" mines.

When operators and miners failed to get together yesterday Johnson telephoned steel leaders in New York where Moses was conferring. A few hours later Moses notified Philip Murray, vice president of the mine workers, that he was ready for a conference.

While Johnson was approaching a decision on the retail trade codes with its price stabilizing plan, Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of NRA's consumer advisory board, asked Secretary Ickes to postpone "any governmental steps toward price fixing in the oil industry."

Mrs. Rumsey, who announced also the creation of the county consumers' councils to handle complaints against profiteering prices, wrote Ickes that the petroleum products bill had gone up $500,000,000 annually, while wages in the oil industry had increased only $125,000,000.

A total of 215,805 tons of freight was locked through Dam No. 8 in the Ohio river during September, lock officials announced today. This is a decrease of 145,532 tons under the August total, due to the coal and steel strikes.

The August total was 360,282 tons while in September, 1932, the tonnage amounted to 216,475 tons. Last month's report shows 189,460 tons of freight were shipped downriver, and 27,345 tons upriver.

HANCOCK TAX CUTS ORDERED

Levying Bodies Must Re-arrange 1933 Budgets.

Radical reductions in budgets of the county and city governing bodies in Hancock county will be necessary to comply with the recent ruling of the West Virginia supreme court prohibiting the levying of taxes outside the limitations. It was indicated today in a letter from State Tax Commissioner Fred L. Fox of Charleston.

The supreme court ruling indicates that all levying bodies must meet their bonded indebtedness before meeting current expenses. All levying bodies in the county prior to the ruling, had set levies outside the limitations to take care of bonded indebtedness.

Chester, having the greatest percentage of indebtedness of any city in the county, will be hardest hit by the ruling. According to Fox's letter, Chester must spend 31.31 percent of her tax collections to pay on her indebtedness before using any for current expenses, leaving only 68.69 percent for operating the city government.

Holidays Cove must spend 26 percent on past indebtedness and New Cumberland 27.1 percent. Grant district must use the first 8.27 percent of collections for this purpose, while Clay district's percentage is 11.57, and Butler district, 17.94.

Special meeting of all levying bodies in the county will probably be called in the near future to re-arrange their respective budgets, officials indicated.

Marking the 10th anniversary of its establishment here, a three weeks' observance will be opened at the J. C. Penney company store in East Fifth street Wednesday. Manager J. E. Hedenquist announced today.

Hedenquist came to East Liverpool in 1923 from Carrington, U. D., opening the Penney store at Fifth and Market streets. The operating force of the first store was composed of six persons, including the manager.

In October, 1926, three years later, the store was moved into its present location in East Fifth street. It now employs a regular force of about 14 persons and an equal number of "extras." During the busiest season, just before Christmas each year, the force is increased to 35 or 40 persons.

The present assistant manager, Richard Henry Breed, has been here nearly six years, coming from Massillon, where he had operated a clothing store.

Quick Relief Now
From Neuralgia

Real BAYER Aspirin Starts Taking Hold in Few Minutes

Here is quicker relief from pain—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve—go to work—almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain—fewer lost hours from headache, neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspirin."

County Home Rule Amendment

The state supreme court's decision allowing the county home rule amendment to appear on the ballot in November removes the last obstacle to a decision which the state as a whole should be eager to make.

Only one thing can defeat the amendment at the polls. That is lack of interest. Advocates who have been feeling out public opinion report active support from citizens who understand the amendment. They report, also, that among those who hear it explained for the first time there is no opposition. Victory is within reach, unless the lethargy of voters is great enough to balk what seems to be an inevitable step in the evolution of government.

It is important to understand that the home rule amendment does not make it obligatory for voters to change the form of county government. If they are satisfied with its present form, they may retain that form indefinitely. Many counties, however, have been facing problems for years which call for alterations in the present form. Approval of the amendment would give those counties the right to change their government up to date.

A wide latitude of choice would be offered counties desiring to make a change. Advocates of the amendment place special stress on this point. The people could work out whatever kind of government they need and want; they would not replace one uniform type with another one. They might desire only a minor change, such as elimination of certain overlapping offices. This could be accomplished without altering materially the structure of their present government. Other counties, notably the heavily populated urban ones, probably would effect a complete reorganization.

The amendment does not effect townships or courts, except to permit the clerk of courts to be appointed. It does not affect schools nor the control of taxation. It was written with the single purpose of enabling the state to bring up to date a governmental structure which was designed for conditions in another day and which experience has proved to be poorly adapted to the modern needs of counties that have changed greatly in the last century.

A Curious Structure

Organization of a joint taxation committee of the state legislature to straighten out Ohio's tax muddle is a move whose origin is a national condition. A few days before the committee was organized, Representative Doughton, chairman of the ways and means committee of the national house of representatives, said that a complete rearrangement of the federal government's revenue structure would be among the first tasks assigned congress when it convenes.

There is little in the tax structure which can be described as rational. State Senator Yoder, chairman of the joint committee, comments on it in this way: "The very apparent facts are that there has been built up by log-rolling methods a hodgepodge system which is grossly unfair and unequal, besides being subject to change at every session of the legislature." Virtually the same comment can be applied to federal taxes.

"What we are after now," says Representative Doughton, "is a permanent tax structure. Many of the levies now in the law were enacted in frantic haste while the house was on fire. We have time now to see where we are going and what is required." It is his opinion that most of the two-year taxes—the nuisance levies—will be dropped. He hopes to have a comprehensive plan of reform worked out before congress convenes, so that a program can be enacted without delay.

Events of the last few years, which have given taxes more prominence than ever as a pressing problem of government, illustrate the desirability of achieving sooner or later a tax structure flexible enough to expand and contract with the expansion and contraction of the times. Into the picture of public revenue has been injected the conception of public responsibility for relief—a conception which is going to mean the expenditure of billions of dollars of public money during the current depression. It is inevitable that if such a plan of relief works, taxes will continue to be heavy. It is not impossible that there will be created out of chaos a more logical tax structure. Obviously, a long time will be required. It is well that in Ohio a start is being made.

One Thing That Doesn't Change

A backstage issue between the national recovery administration and employers deals with the effect of NRA on strikes. Employers claim that the provisions of the act and their administration are fomenting strikes. NRA officials reply that an outburst of labor difficulties always has accompanied recovery from depressions.

The evidence is with NRA officials. The record of labor troubles in the United States indicates that they decrease when hard times create strong competition for jobs. When the country is recovering from a depression, labor tries to gain back the ground it has lost, by strikes if necessary. There is good reason to believe that current strikes, however deplorable they may be from the standpoint of the recovery program, merely demonstrate the soundness of the rule.

Back in 1881 the bureau of labor began to collect figures on the number of strikes. This was a year of prosperity. In 1884, a year of depression, strikes decreased, but increased again in the recovery of 1885. In the prosperous period of 1886 to 1892, there were numerous strikes.

Federal statistics are missing for a period of years, but the record of the last decade and a-half is familiar. The war was accompanied with many strikes, but the total was kept relatively low by the machinery of arbitration established in the Wilson administration and by the opportunity for high profits as long as plants were in operation. In the post-war depression, the number of strikes decreased, only to increase again in the recovery of 1923.

The ensuing period of prosperity was an exception to the general trend. Various factors are assigned, such as high wages, welfare work, shorter working hours and establishment of company unions. However, in 1930, strikes decreased and the number was held low until May of this year. The record seems to prove that labor's interminable struggle for advantage is one thing that doesn't change. NRA, in all probability, has tended to keep strikes from being more prevalent.

Bureau of Propaganda

There has been no truer indication of the distance Germany has come under the Hitler regime than seizure of the last rights of the press. From now on, Germany will read nothing in its newspapers that does not have the approval of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's minister of propaganda and enlightenment.

It is a restriction with plenty of teeth. Publication of articles judged treasonable is punishable by death. Heavy penalties or imprisonment are provided for other offenses. An interesting detail is the rule against non-Aryans in the profession of journalism. It is anticipated that even a newspaperman with a Jewish wife will be unable to find employment.

Dr. Goebbels, with the amazing confidence of the Nazis, pronounces the new setup "the most modern journalistic statute" in the world. With a fine disregard for the censure of the press in other nations, he predicts that it will be made a model for governmental use elsewhere.

Perhaps the most direct way to judge the significance of the statute is to imagine what it would mean in the United States at the present time. The situations are comparable; both countries are in the midst of earnest recovery movements under strong leadership.

In this country, it would mean that no comment which might be construed by a judge working for the administration as critical of any federal policy would be permitted. In effect, that would entail a complete alteration of editorial policy by every newspaper in the nation. The Roosevelt administration would be working in a vacuum.

Americans do not believe in this sort of thing, even as a drastic action. It is contrary to one of the cherished fundamentals of the form of government for which they have fought and bled. So well grounded are they in their belief that a free press contributes to sound government that they are unable to see how a bridled press can be of service even in a nation as uncertain in its course as modern Germany. It is their judgment that any government unable to stand in the face of criticism by its people is too weak to stand.

GENERAL BRINKERHOFF CONCEIVED THE IDEA

By J. H. Galbraith

Written For The Associated Press
It is generally known that Levi A. Schenck, a Cleveland architect, executed the "My Jewels" group of Saturday, the most notable in the state capital grounds but the idea was conceived by the late Redell Brinkerhoff of Mansfield, long the head of the state board of charities. At a dinner given by the State Archaeological and Historical society in February 1891, the general was placed on the program as a speaker without time for preparation. His subject was "Ohio at the Columbian Exposition." As he waited his turn to speak, he revolved the subject in his mind, and when he was called upon to speak, after giving a few general suggestions in the way of building and exhibits, he alluded to the fact that Ohio excelled in the production of men. Then he related the story of Cornelia, the Roman matron, who presented her sons as her jewels, and thought it might be possible to represent the state as a noble matron in the midst of a group of her children upon whom she could look down with serene admiration.

Today's News Review

Improve The Bible.

You may now buy the "short Bible," edited by Prof. Goodspeed, of the University of Chicago, and the late Prof. J. M. P. Smith.

In this "rearranged" Bible Amos is the first book. Genesis moves back to seventeenth place.

Prof. Goodspeed says the complete Bible is "so big, bewildering and obscure that it intimidates most readers." Many old Puritans did not find it so.

The best thing to do with any ancient monument is to let it alone. You spoil it when you try to improve it. No wise man would try to restore arms to the Venus of Milo, or repair the Winged Victory.

To Kill The Incurable.

Chancellor Hitler's government revives the old suggestion to kill those suffering from incurable illness. The sufferer could request death, or relatives could request it, but only "acting from motives that do not contravene morals."

Consent of a family doctor and two official doctors would be necessary.

The Catholic and Lutheran churches both oppose the suggestion. The Catholic newspaper Germania warns:

"The Catholic faith binds the consciences of its followers not to accept this method of shortening the sufferings of incurables who are tormented by pain."

Lutheran churches remind the government that life is something that God alone has the right to take.

Killing the incurable, which might mean, in plain English, "getting rid of a nuisance," is no new idea. Our ancestors of long ago, as you may learn from Westernmark, Reclus, or a dozen others, killed as a matter of course the old, no longer useful, and a hindrance to swift migration.

Savage tribes would kill their ruler, or compel him to kill himself, when too old to lead them. And in the Far North now, among primitive Eskimos, you might see a "worthless" old man placed in his little hut of ice with a certain amount of food, the entrance closed up, after him, with blocks of wet ice, meaning death.

To permit killing the incurable would open the way to murder. Besides the "incurable" disease of today is often the disease that can be cured tomorrow.

Leprosy, smallpox, diphtheria, malaria, typhoid fever, Bright's disease, that once killed tens of millions every year, are practically conquered, wherever men care to take trouble.

Condensed Heat, Light

Important news for those that live on farms and in isolated places:

"German chemists have produced a condensed illuminating gas called 'protan.' One steel cylinder, containing fifty cubic meters of this gas, very expensive, would last an ordinary household for from one to three months' lighting and cooking."

The gas is a by-product of synthetic benzene works. Big oil companies in America will want to know as quickly as possible, how the thing is done.

And soon small power units, run by Diesel engines, inexpensive, serving individual farms or groups of farms, will supply power at a cost far below present charges, and make it unnecessary to run power lines to far-away places at great expense.

One big power company in California says, frankly:

"If you can use 40-horsepower or more, the Diesel engine can beat our prices, and we admit it."

That will soon be true no matter how little power you use.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Ruby Keeler symbolizes the New Deal in movie girls—a get-away from platinum blondes, sinuous shrugs and super-sophistication. Wherever she went on her visit here, the crowds congregate, murmuring praise that rose to register clamor for her appearance.

Miss Keeler remains herself and her life is haloed with an appealing Cinderella theme that always catches the fervor of a crowd. She was born in a tenement district as Celtic as the blue of her eyes. And she has not forgotten. She calls on Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. O'Callahan.

Her beauty is even more pronounced off screen. Her dark hair falls in natural waves over a boyish head, features chiseled out of white ivory are the background for lips of cherry red and peach-blond complexion. Her smile has a warming shyness.

But permit a local cinema chatter to continue the rave: "Demure, entrancing, ravishing—behold Ruby Keeler!" The other evening Miss Keeler was leaving a theater on her husband's arm. A black carriage boy observed: "Mr. Jolson, you sure looks proudful." Al with an expensive eye roll, beamed: "Boy, I is!"

The late Eddie Dillon and Robert Z. Leonard shared an office together in Hollywood to search for plays. One morning after "a tough day at the studio" Eddie with several mss. propped against his desk in well fed asleep. Leonard tiptoed in, placed an open phone book over the plays and exploded a torpedo. Awakened and, without turning his head, Eddie stared at the open phone book and murmured: "Louise—too many characters."

Ambitious mammas with marriageable daughters have three new catches for which to angle this winter. The young men who along with manhood have attained enormous inheritances are Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Woolworth Donohue and John Jacob Astor. Each is said to be of serious turn. No play-boy.

The jaunty mustache is having another vogue this Fall. The avenue is brist with Clifton Webb, Paul Whitman and even Hitler effects. But when it comes to dashing, lashing, devil-may-care lip shrubbery, my candidate for the moment is Major John M. Warner, son-in-law of Al Smith and, I believe, president of the New York Athletic club. Viewing his romantic adornment, I think only of ruffs, doublet and hose, D'Artagnan and Don Caesar de Bazan; second place in the Dashing-Mustache Sweepstakes, of course, should go to that master chameleon, Grover Whalen.

Almee McPherson's thirst for lemonade kept a fleet of bell boys busy at her hotel as well as call boys bawling stage at the Capitol. She likes it in especially tall glasses and a statistician figures she easily consumes 20 beakers a day. But servants do not mind totting her favorite liquid, for the evangelist is a liberal tipper.

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

BY GEORGE DURNON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Regardless of all the diplomatic reassurances you may see the Roosevelt administration is convinced the Island of Cuba is a keg of dynamite that may blow at any minute.

What course we shall pursue when and if the fuse is touched off is keeping the state department awake at nights and chaining President Roosevelt to his office.

Uncle Sam, because of the Platt amendment, is responsible not only for his own citizens there but is expected to protect the nationals of other lands as well.

Secretary of State Hull and his assistants keep talking down the idea of intervention. In this they are speaking from the book.

Mr. Roosevelt has passed word down the line he doesn't want our marines and sailors landing and taking over the situation except as an extreme resort. Too many factors are at stake. This government is well aware that certain European capitals would be only too glad to see us do so.

Then they could stir up the old Latin-American antagonism to "Uncle Sam the oppressor," step in personally, and improve their Central and South American trade at our expense.

Naval officers in command of our ships in Cuban waters have secret orders exhaustively covering their course of action in event of trouble.

At the first sign that shooting is becoming so general as to endanger the lives of Americans and other foreigners they are to put their small boats ashore, rather than all possible Americans, British and other nationalities and evacuate them to the safety of our warships.

There is to be no shooting on the part of our forces unless it is absolutely necessary to save a foreigner's life.

Soldiers
Privately Washington officials are anticipating the eventual necessity of pulling all possible aliens out of Havana.

President Grau San Martin has been ruling Cuba for more than a month with only the support of several thousand troops and a student body. Taxes are NOT being collected and no revenues are coming in to the Cuban treasury. The troops will be loyal to Grau San Martin (or anybody else) only as long as they get paid.

When funds run out to keep the professional fighters happy, then Washington looks for trouble with a capital T.

Decision
Competent observers have reported confidentially to the state department it is their opinion will break bloody revolution will break immediately in the wake of any desertion of Grau San Martin by his troops.

Reports that were coming in the day before President Roosevelt addressed the American Legion in Chicago were so black the executive didn't make up his mind finally to go until two hours before train time. That last minute announcement of the Chicago trip wasn't window dressing to dramatize Mr. Roosevelt's appearance before the veterans.

Telegrams were pouring into Hyde Park that night. The President had Secretary Hull on the long distance phone several times. At one stage of the evening he had about decided to hurry back to Washington.

Loose
Badgered and harassed from all sides for their inability to get money flowing into actual payrolls officials of the public works administration are complaining privately they are being stymied in the south and west by state laws and financial conditions.

They could get the ball rolling all right by awarding a lot of outright money grants and letting the federal treasury shoulder the whole burden.

But this wouldn't be fair to those who have come in already and signed up for projects, 70 per cent of which are to be repaid.

A number of propositions have come in from the south and west where work could be started soon enough, but Uncle Sam would kiss all his money good-bye forever.

In many instances states and municipalities in these sections are already up to the limit of their bonded indebtedness with prospects generally bad for the immediate future at least.

To increase their indebtedness special elections would have to be called, a given percentage of the registered voters would have to turn out and a given percentage of that percentage would have to okay going more into hock.

So far Secretary-Administrator Ickes has been sticking by his guns and trying to lay out the emergency money where there is a chance that some of it will come back.

It may be he will have to revise his policy. There are those who contend the money was appropriated by congress to meet a grave emergency. The emergency is some 11,000,000 unemployed.

The big idea, say those now pressing public works, is to get those people back to work—or as many as possible of them—and count the losses later.

Nazis
The rumormongers in Berlin over the appointment of a new minister of defense has international significance for administration experts.

Von Papen and his allies want to keep supreme command of the Reichswehr from falling altogether into the hands of the Nazis. The Nazi heads are determined to consolidate their position by appointing either Goering or Roehm to the war ministry. The Reichswehr ranks, due to the failure of Hitler to live up to his promises, calls for repressive measures without delay.

Trouble at home brings friction abroad nearer day by day.

Notes
The public works administration at least has a growing admiration for the Navy department for producing . . . At the snap of a finger they get planes to ride around in, men to do special work, photographs, special information, etc. . . . The hoboes' code is now in N. R. A. . . . Over the impressive signature of "J. Leon B. M. C. S. Lassarowitz, King of the Hoboes of North America," it says "every hobo in the entire United States pledges himself to boycott all products and persons (c) not cooperating with the Presidential proclamation." . . . A postscript requested full publicity, herewith extended.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The banking invalid is going to be lifted over the deposit insurance hurdle on cushions instead of having to jump it unaided.

Big banks and little banks alike have been making the government's ears ring with the lament that their system is in no state of health to leap that hurdle. A lot of smaller banks would be certain to trip and fall on their faces with a resulting solar plexus wallop to confidence and recovery. What the banks wanted was to get deposit insurance called off or modified or at least postponed.

What they will get is something else. Deposit insurance stands as arranged. But every bank-state and national—now opened will be placed in a position to qualify. How? By simply padding the sore spots with extra capital provided by the government through the RFC.

That way depositors and guaranteeing banks have an extra margin

The Sunlit Road

"As dew to the blooms, and bud to the bee, as scent to the rose, are these memories to me."

By TOM T. JONES

Methodists in days of nearly a century ago were admonished not to countenance favorably persons who wore high hats, enormous bonnets, ruffles and rings. "Thoughts On Dress," by John Wesley was to be read once a year to congregations by their ministers. Pastors were duly charged to insist on rules of dress and not to receive any one into the church until they left off themselves that which was designated as super-ornaments.

These and other facts regarding this early body of churchmen in America were disclosed in a volume of 1848 owned by Mrs. G. A. Shone of Pleasant Heights which was a part of the collection of old volumes shown in a collection forming part of the exhibit prepared for the interest of delegates to the recent assemblage of members of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs at the Carnegie library in East Fourth street.

This little volume, remarkably well preserved, was published by the firm of Lane and Scott of New York City with James Longing as the printer. It noted among other things that the initial activities of Methodists in America occurred in the years 1768 or 1769. In that interval of time Richard Boardman and Joseph Pilmore came to New York and held the first preaching services by this denomination in America. In 1771 Francis Asbury, the later bishop, followed these two to America. It was suggested by the compiler of this little volume on discipline that it should be in every Methodist home in America. It was compiled evidently by a committee of men who signed themselves as Elijah Hedding, Beverly Waugh, Thomas A. Morris, Leonidas L. Hamline and Edmund S. Janes.

There was a brief history in it of the beginning of Methodism in England. It was stated that two young men, doubtless the Wesley brothers, John and Charles Wesley, came to the conclusion from their own reading of the Bible that "they could not be saved without holiness." This was in 1729. Holiness, the acquirement of it, became thereafter, it was said, their aim. In 1768 Philip Embrey, a local preacher from Ireland began preaching in New York City for this then so-called Society of Methodists. The same year Thomas Webb began to preach and Robert Strawbridge came to Maryland from Ireland.

Advice to Preachers

In 1784 Thomas Coke, a doctor of civil law and late of Jesus college who had been attached to the University of Oxford, was set apart to go to America to designate bishops in the church. It was thus at the general conference at Baltimore that year that Francis Asbury was also made a bishop and began the work that was far in succeeding years in establishing the denomination in America.

In those days, the Discipline indicated, preachers of the church were recommended to "preach in the morning when they could get hearers." It was additionally stated, "We recommended morning preaching at five o'clock in the summer and six in the winter, where ever it is practicable."

The ministers were also charged to choose simple texts for their sermons so that the plain language could be understood by their hearers. The preachers of that early day were also warned to "not ramble, but keep to your texts and make out what you take in hand." It was suggested that young preachers be allowed to exhort without the taking of texts.

Preachers of that day were advised also to be diligent. "Never be triflingly employed and never trifle away time," was the pertinent advice given to them in this prepared volume. "Be serious," it was added. "Let your motto be, 'Holiness unto the Lord.'" Ministers were also told to avoid all jesting, lightness and foolish talking. "Converse sparingly," they were told, "and conduct yourselves prudently with women." These early ministers were also charged to seek advice before marriage. "Take no step toward marriage without first consulting with your brethren," they were admonished.

Also the ministers were told to "avoid all affectation." It was declared, "A preacher of the gospel is the servant of all. Be ashamed of nothing but sin. You have nothing to do but to save souls. Therefore spend and be spent in this work."

To prevent the possibility of formality in song during services it was suggested that not too much of a hymn should be sung at once. But they were not to sing slowly. The minister was to inquire at intervals whether the singers realized that which they were singing about.

Fought Against Slavery

"Let women constantly sing alone," was another adjuration in the little volume which indicated the viewpoints of those then in charge of the church. "Let no man sing with them unless he be under the notes and sings the base as it is composed in the hymn book." It was explained.

Attention was called to the need of care in not "profaning the day of the Lord, either by selling or buying or by the doing of ordinary work therein." It was charged that there was to be the use of there words in selling or buying. It was also noted that there should be no putting on of gold or costly apparel.

It was also pointed out that traveling preacher who was an owner of slaves should forfeit his ministry in the church unless he executed emancipation in conformity to the laws of the state in which he lived. They were to aid slaves in learning to read the word of God and urge them to attend worship.

RUSSIA, JAPAN STILL DIFFER

Japanese Demands
"Good Faith" in Soviet Probe.

TOKYO, Oct. 10.—New differences between Russia and Japan rose today to clutter the path of continued peace in the Far East. Tentatively, said a Japanese foreign office spokesman, Japan will content herself with an investigation of the circulation at Moscow of documents which allegedly described a Japanese plot to seize the Chinese Eastern railway.

Then, he added, "stronger measures may be necessary" unless guarantees of "good faith" immediately are forthcoming from the U. S. S. R.

The new threat to peace, like others before it, was born of the protracted wrangling over negotiations for the sale of the Chinese railway.

Japan entered the conversations officially as a mediator in the projected sale by Russia to Nippon's puppet state, Manchukuo.

But charges have flared frequently in the Soviet capital that Tokyo was going further—was, in fact, as most lately asserted, joining in a plot to seize the road.

ROTARY HEARS REV. HAWKINS

Minister Discusses
"The Boy Today" at Club Luncheon.

"There are two ways of looking at him, just as there are two ways of looking at everything," Rev. Don P. Hawkins said today in a talk before the Rotary club on "The Boy Today."

He continued:
"Yet with him it is of the greatest importance how we look at him. Not only as the teacher looks but also, and so much more important, how the parents look at him. There are nowadays so many different kinds of parents."

"What is he? A toy to play with? A toy to be handed over to others when he has ceased to be interesting to parents, or becomes tiresome? An evil to be endured and put up with and indulged to keep him quiet, perhaps, until he can be sent to school to be corrected by others when his character has been spoiled at home? Sometimes then, correction is impossible.

"What is he? A living danger to be always coerced with severity and restraint until in self-defense he becomes hypocritical and underhanded? What is he? One's own, to be made a servant sometimes almost a slave of household until his heart seethes with rebellion, ill-suppressed?

"What is he? I think I know what he is, even in this mechanical and machine-made world and that there are millions of mothers and fathers who know what he is. To say is to be laughed at in this behavioristic, atheistic, psychological and mechanistic world of ours. He is not yours, nor ours, nor his parents, but a son of God.

"What right have we to disclaim against him? After all that boy in the home is influenced more than we can ever tell by the things that he knows we do and by the things he hears us say.
First and foremost he is living in age when God is not expected as he was in former generations. He is made fun of today as he adheres too strongly to Sunday school and church; he is called a sissy by boy friends and older people if he does not have dates with so-called 'fast ones.' But he feels the need of a higher power and reaches out many times of his own accord and finds God himself. The son will find the Father some way."

SHIPS FEARED LOST IN STORM

Fate of Two Score
Seamen Remains
Uncertain.

By The Associated Press.
HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 10.—The fate of two score seamen remained uncertain today as marine officials attempted to learn the toll of a storm that whirled up the Atlantic seaboard over the week-end and blew itself out north of Newfoundland.

Ships were asked to keep a sharp lookout for 21 men of the Greek steamer Annula, believed to have foundered Saturday about 600 miles east of Cape Lookout, N. C. The Newfoundland schooner Telle put into Yarmouth with her flag at half-mast. The cook, Walter Butland, of Sydney, N. S., had been washed from the ship's deck by a huge wave that sent the little craft on her beam ends while all hands manned the pumps at the height of Saturday night's gale.

Off the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia an unidentified derelict drifted bottom up in the shipping lane. Her three masts apparently had been snapped at the deck. She was described as a twin-screw wooden auxiliary schooner, probably carrying 10 men.

The belief that the derelict might be the long overdue Dorin, out of Bahamas with salt for Yarmouth, N. S., was dissipated by Captain J. T. Cruickshanks of Halifax, owner of the Dorin, who said his vessel was a single-screw auxiliary steel schooner.

The Dorin was believed to have been a victim of a previous storm. Cruickshanks said he had given up hope for her crew of 10, including his younger brother, Nelson, 22.

The United States coast guard reported the Boston Trawler Quincy, presumably a victim of the week-end blow, was being towed to Halifax for repairs.

OPERATION FOR YOUTH URGED

Amnesia Victim Can Be Cured, Doctors Believe.

By The Associated Press.
CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—These lapses of memory which have plagued Raymond Winkler, 22, for years may be ended if the state furnishes the money for an operation and the operation is a success.

Since he fell from a ladder and broke his neck, Winkler, a resident of Hamilton, frequently has been reported "missing." Yesterday he was found in a dazed condition, wandering about in the downtown section. A card with his name and a return ticket to Hamilton were found in a pocket.

When he recovered at a hospital, the victim of amnesia said the last thing he remembered was leaving Hamilton in an automobile with friends.

Winkler's neck is in a metal cast. Physicians said "pinched nerves" have caused him to suffer amnesia and spasms of hiccuping. An operation to "block off" or deaden two nerves leading from the neck to the stomach would stop the hiccuping, physicians believe, and perhaps end the attacks of amnesia. The operation would consist of injection of alcohol or an opiate.

The young man receives $17 every two weeks from the state workmen's compensation board, but has a wife and small son to support.

COLLEGE STUDENT BEATEN

FINDLAY, O., Oct. 10.—Investigating the kidnapping and beating of Karl Roller, Findlay college student, Police Chief Leo Larkins promised an arrest soon "if further investigation warrants." Roller was taken five miles from the campus, apparently by students, and beaten severely.

DEPUTY SERIOUSLY ILL

DAYTON, O., Oct. 10.—When A. R. Francis, former chief deputy in the county treasurer's office, failed to appear for trial on a forgery charge, the court was told by Francis' physician that the accused man is in danger of death after an operation.

PUSH SUCCESS IN STRATOSPHERE

Encouraged by the wave of enthusiasm that swept the nation following the success of the first Soviet flight into the stratosphere, Russian aviation authorities are planning a series of such flights which will begin next spring, and be carried out at the rate of one a week. To this end a nation-wide subscription has been started for funds to build the necessary craft. Under the direction of P. F. Fedoseenko, who conceived the first flight, it is proposed to build a stratosphere balloon of much greater proportions than the U. S. S. R., which, piloted by George Prokofiev and E. E. Birnbaum, attained an altitude of 11.8 miles recently, to shatter all existing records. The object of the stratosphere program was announced as a drive to "conquer the stratosphere for Stalin."

CERAMIC.

"Let Us Be Gay," with Norma Shearer in the starring role, will show today and Wednesday at the Ceramic theater. The picture was adapted from the New York stage success by Rachel Crothers which ran for ten months at the Little Theater with Francine Larrimore in the role portrayed on the screen by Miss Shearer.

Robert Z. Leonard, who produced the star's last success, "The Divorcee," directed the current production and gathered together an unusually important supporting cast which includes Rod La Rocque in the leading masculine role, Marie Dressler, Gilbert Emery, Hilda Hopper, Raymond Hackett, Sally Eilers and Tyrrell Davis.

The story is an amusing tale of a woman who loses her husband's affection because she neglects her appearance in an over-efficient absorbance in household duties. A few years in Paris, however, teaches her a number of things she had never thought of before, and she returns in time to prevent her ex-husband from marrying a charming but entirely unsophisticated debutante.

The plot offers Miss Shearer plenty of opportunity for smart comedy as well as straight drama while humor of a more ribald type is offered by Marie Dressler in the role of an erratic dowager.

Medical Science To Conquer Many Diseases Within Century

Dr. Crile of Cleveland Sees Cure For Tuberculosis, Diabetes Before 2033.

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO Oct. 10.—Mr. 2033 won't have so many ailments to worry about of the prediction of Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland comes true.

Dr. Crile, head of a large medical clinic in the Ohio city, took a peek at the man of the next century and reported he would have some causes for rejoicing.

Not only would the man of 2033 enjoy longer life, he said, but he would be rid of such devastating diseases as tuberculosis and diabetes. By that time, he predicted, medical science will have conquered these two ailments.

By the time 2033 arrives, the layman will have been educated to what physicians know now concerning the importance of local infections in the teeth and elsewhere as causes of diseases, of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, and such ailments will be greatly reduced, Dr. Crile said. So will all other infectious diseases.

But on the other side of the picture the doctor foresaw a possible increase in the heart, kidney and other organic ailments that are caused by nervous and mental strain, described by him as the "drive of environment conditions." And cancer he predicted, will still claim many victims, even though the nature of the disease may be eventually disclosed.

Dr. Crile was one of several speakers who addressed laymen in their language at meetings arranged at a Century of Progress by the American college of surgeons. Dr. Crile said he believed medical science would do more than guard the health and increase the span of life for the man of the future. A profound effect upon his education and preparation was foreseen by him.

CAN'T PLEASE TEACHER

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—Well, you school boys, here's a brand new alibi for any poor grades in that report card:

You just couldn't please the teacher.

And you have William L. Conner, a research director, to back you up.

After a statistical survey of "thinking" by boys in Cleveland schools Conner comments that "passing marks in school depend upon pleasing teacher."

He found girls get better grades than boys because they "conform" better to a social situation. And schools, he said, "are set up in such a way that a premium is placed on conformity."

Boys, he learned, "pester the teacher more, and she consciously or unconsciously takes it out on them in marking."

The HIDDEN DOOR

By FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: After weeks of wandering about New York's underworld disguised as Clark Lunn, a crook, Colin Hewitt at last has come upon the trail of the Mask, his quarry. The Mask has threatened Colin's life: now Colin suddenly finds himself a member of one of the Mask's gangs. Benny Malone, in a room behind a little East Side tobacco shop, is instructing him in the layout. He will work under a man known as Buck, one of the Mask's lieutenants. Benny describes the "Wine Press," formerly a come-on joint for slumming parties, now being used as headquarters by the Mask, and tells of the owner of the Wine Press, Koppelstein.

Chapter 26 PLEASANT PROSPECT "If you saw anybody on the porch," said Benny Malone with a malicious grin, "it was old Koppelstein and nobody else, because he lives there all his lonesome, and he's too much of a miser to let anyone else sit in one of his chairs without anyone paying for it!" Colin looked puzzled. "You don't mean that he's in on—" "Him!" ejaculated Benny Malone. "Nix! He's as dirty a crook as there is in New York—but he ain't our kind of crook. He'd slap a court order on your false teeth if you owed him money."

"The only thing he's in on here is his rent—and he comes around to get it from Barney before breakfast the first of every month. He owns a lot of property and its worth a lot of money, but nobody ever knew him to blow any of it—even on himself!"

"Some day, if he lives long enough, somebody'll bump him off. I'd take the job on myself and enjoy it. He put a widow and three kids that lived in a tenement he owns out in a storm a couple of days ago. What do you know about that? But," Benny Moore admitted grudgingly "he makes a hot blind for us here just the same."

"I get you," laughed Colin. "Say, I feel like a kid at school putting his hand up. What else have I got to learn?"

"How to get in and how to get out—and that you're never to come here unless you're sent for," he turned Benny Malone. "And get that last good and hard, Clarke! This ain't any clubhouse, and there ain't any loafing done around here."

"Mr. and Mrs. Barney are supposed to be respectable. See? Only the big shots like Buck O'Mara and Helme Schwarm come here when they like, and sometimes when there's a big job on one or two of them sleep here—being the roomers I was telling you about that the Barneys sometimes take in."

"The rest of us aren't here more'n once a week, and sometimes not for two or three weeks—only when we're wanted. And when you're wanted you'll get a card with W. P. on it and the hour, or else the same thing over the phone. Savvy?"

Colin licked his lips greedily. "I'm sucking it in," he said. "Well, c'en," said Benny Malone. "Listen to the last shout. If you have to show up here in daylight use the store, or else go down and see if Solly's got your shoes mended yet. Switch about, shuffle your cards—see?"

"If it's dark there's another way in. Duck into the alleyway alongside here and then around into this lane. There's a door there that opens off this lower hall. It's got a latch. Lift the latch and you'll find the head of a nail—only it's a push button. Push it once, wait a second, then push it twice—two quick ones—and one of the Barneys will let you in."

"There's another door there, a little farther away from the alleyway, but don't monkey with that, it leads to the back stairs, and the big shots are the only ones that have got keys to it. There ain't anything else that—"

A form bulked suddenly in the doorway and a man came into the room. Benny Malone, as master of ceremonies, performed the introduction. The man's name was Klengell. At intervals of some few minutes two more men appeared—stocky chaps like the first, with weather-beaten faces. Again Benny Malone went through the rites. The latest comers answered respectively to the names of Smudge Kirea and Geordie Napp.

"Helme Schwarm's right-handers," Benny Malone announced for Colin's benefit. "Clarke here is a new one. Any more to come?" No one in particular being addressed, the man who had been introduced as Smudge Kirea answered.

"Nope!" he said. "Three of the fleet'll be all that's needed. But where's Buck?"

"Here!" said a voice curly from the doorway. Colin looked up. A sandy-haired man, with thick, bushy, sandy eyebrows, and a tight, determined mouth, met his gaze—and the mouth suddenly relaxed into a not unpleasant smile.

"Hello, Clarke," Buck O'Mara flung out. "I hear you've joined up. We'll get to know each other better." He looked around the room. "All set, eh?—except that I haven't heard from Helme. Do any of you know whether he's been in?"

Benny Malone dragged from his pocket the envelope that Helme Schwarm had given him. "Helme was here a little while ago," he said. "He told me he couldn't wait, but that this was the dope you wanted and I was to give it to you."

Buck O'Mara tore the envelope open, extracted a sheet of paper, and studied the latter attentively for a full minute—then he broke into a grim laugh.

STAR AND FIANCE CLEARED IN "PLOT"

Designating the attempt to involve them in an alleged plot to disfigure John Warburton, British actor, as "disgusting and malicious," Alice White, film star, and her writer fiance, Sidney Bartlett (shown at top) convinced the Los Angeles county grand jury that they were innocent of charges made by Russell Brown (lower left) and Martin Block (right), movie extras, held on charges of robbing and beating Warburton. Brown and Block had accused Miss White and Bartlett of complicity in the crime.

Debt Honor

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 10.—The British are over here now talking to us about debts. That's one thing you got to say for them, they were the first to pay us anything, and even if they are not going to pay us any more, they at least come over and talk it over with us, and if ever a different settlement is made they certainly deserve the first break. We scorn their tea, we kid their poor English dialect, and we think they are snobbish, but by golly we know that their honor all over the world is recognized.

SLEEPING SICKNESS An epidemic breaks out, a score of people die. Everyone is terribly concerned. And rightly so, for sleeping sickness is a fearful disease. Yet tuberculosis is always with us, taking its toll of human life every single day—$5 per 100,000 population in Ohio die from it annually. But it concerns us so little that we permit people to die from lack of proper care and treatment. We fail to segregate tuberculosis sufferers and allow them to spread the germs of this highly infectious disease among their families, friends and fellow workers. There is nothing spectacular about "Get Well in Ohio"

Your Health

By Dr. R. S. Copeland

"Brush your teeth twice a day and see your dentist at least twice a year," is familiar advice heard over the radio. Yet I wonder how many of the listeners in the nationwide hookup heed this warning.

In the sixteenth century, so-called dentists advised that "to keep teeth healthy eat a mouse once a month and fumigate the mouth with smoke from onion seeds." I can readily understand why such revolting advice as this should be spurned, but it is difficult to understand why any sensible person should fail to follow the advice of the modern dentist.

No one will deny that there has been a marked change in the medical and dental world as regards disease. In former years every effort was made to cure disease. Today emphasis is placed upon the prevention of disease as well as the cure.

At one time the extraction of diseased and decayed teeth was a common dental practice. Today the dentists help prevent decay and so avoids the necessity of pulling teeth. With proper dental care this can be given in childhood. The visit to the dentist should be made before the first back teeth, the molars, appear. If everyone were given this early attention there is no doubt that fewer teeth would be lost in adult life and serious constitutional diseases would be avoided.

In addition to the necessary hygiene and care of the teeth, proper dental health requires a well balanced diet. The diet is especially important for young children before the appearance of the permanent teeth.

Bear in mind that a diet lacking in certain vitamins leads to cavity formation and diseased teeth. For this reason fruit juices are advised for the infant as early as the fourth week. Strained orange juice or tomato juice, and cod liver oil, given in early childhood, will assure your child healthy and strong teeth.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of periodic visits to the dentist for the child and adult. Care of the temporary teeth will insure strong and sturdy teeth.

Do not be misled by the thought that since the first teeth are temporary they require little attention. This is wrong. Let me warn you again against neglect of the teeth. Do not assume that since you have no pain or discomfort your teeth are healthy. Whether they are or not only the dentist can determine. (Copyright, 1933, K. F. S. Inc.)
